King's cavalry during the war. Soon Col. King found it convenient to move his residence to Lee county, Ark, where he owned a valuable plantation, which he leased to Mrs. Pillow. He left his family in Memphis, however, and scandal coupled his name with that of Mrs. Pillow. Three years later Mrs. Pillow moved to Memphis, Col. King then sent his family to the Arkansas plantation, remaining in Memphis himself and boarding with Mrs. Pillow to whom he rented the house out of which his family had moved.

Following the publication Mrs. Pillow filed a cross bill containing, among other charges, one that Col. King had heard stories concerning his wife from a negro that would enable him to procure a divorce from her. This insult to a pure woman Col. King resented, and this paragraph furnished the excuse which led to the tragedy which followed. Mrs. Pillow had employed David H. Poston to prosecute her suit. On March 10, 1891, Col. King shot Poston.

A correspondent accompanied the murderer to the jail a few minutes later, and asked him if he had anything the ablest criminal lawyers of the State, and yet his defence was insanity. The trial lasted thirty-three days, and resulted in a conviction. The jury was out only two hours. He appealed to the Supreme Court, and it was given ont that he would argue his own case. Attorney-General Pickels got wind of his plan of defence, and so took the wind out of his sails that at the last moment Colonel King refused to speak. Chief Justice Turney was taken ill after the farmers of this and other States, their NON ACID PHOSPHATE. This New Natural Fertilizer contains 24 per cent, of Phosohoric Acid, with 5 per cent, of this amount available on present crops, they are per cent, of Phosohoric Acid, with 5 per cent, of Phoso moment Colonel King refused to speak.

Chief Justice Turney was taken ill after the hearing, and no decision was rendered for three weeks. It was adversed dered for three weeks. It was adversed the point raised, by property point raised, je16 dered for three weeks. It was adverse to the prisoner on every point raised, Justice Snodgrass alone dissenting.

Although sixteen months have clapsed since the murder, public indignation has increased rather than diminished, and when a petition was circulated asking for a commutation to imprisonment for life another petition was at once signed asking the governor not to interfere. The latter petition had twice as many signers as the other.

The four brothers of Poston came out in a card setting forth that their first idea was revenge; that finally, agreeing to let the law take its course; they were satisfied with the conviction and begged all good citizens not to ask exclusive clemency. It is almost certain that Governor Buchanan will not interfere. King does not expect if, the people want to see the law enforced, and thero is little doubt that Colonel King will be hanged on August 12, in which case he will be the most distinguished victim of the gallows in this country since the case of Dr. Webster, of Boston, over forty years ago. however, as an infamous outrage and a judicial murder.

On March 10, 1891, Col. King shot David H. Poston on Main street in Memphis at noon. The wounded man was removed to the private infirmary of Mitchell & Maury, where he died the following afternoon. In 1884 Col. King was engaged as the attorney of Mrs. M. F. Pillow, the widow of Gideon E. Pillow, known to fame as the hero of the Pillow massacre on the Mississippi river. Mrs. Pillow was a handsome, wellpreserved woman of 40 when Col. King met her. He was a lawyer prominent in his profession, the author of several law books, for 12 years had been Attorney-General of the State of Tennessee, and was distinguished as a soldier, having been the gallant cavalry leader of King's cavalry during the war. Soon

On the trial a question as to the relation between Col. King and Mrs. Pillow was asked, and Col. King, assuming a dramatic attitude, said: "You have doubtless read 'David Copper-Said: Venezonko La tribute.

But his Agnes was afraid to trust him, and when at her behest he transferred to her all his property in Loe county on the condition that she would not record the transfer, she violated her part of the agreement by doing so. This was the beginning of the disagree-ment which followed. The end was

In the trial that followed the defence was self-defence, provocation and insanity, and the strange spectacle was presented of a lawyer and author whose own books were quoted on the trial. He occupied the witness stand for two days, successfully baffling the shrewdness of two of the ablest criminal lawyers of the State, which is the strange of the State, and other States, which is the strange of the States, which is the strange of the States, and other States, which is the strange of the States, which is the strange of the states of the states of the states.
